CLIMATE JUSTICE IN THE TIMES OF ECOLOGICAL TRANSITION

The importance of climate in the legal system raises the question of the adequacy of its protection. After an examination of the international, European and national sources of the so-called “climate obligations”, the essay investigates the issue of climate justice. The “Giudizio Universale” case, pending before the Tribunal of Rome, is thus framed within this broad setting; the plaintiffs’ claim, the respondent’s possible defenses and the judicial powers are analyzed through an in-depth dialogue with U.S., Indian and European climate justice cases.
