THE RECEPTION SYSTEM AFTER THE CUTRO DECREE

Immigration policy, from solidarity and integration needs to those of security and border control, with the launch of the so-called Cutro decree, has reduced the range of the so-called balancing interests and taking a drastic direction, which also appears monothematic: the dismantling of the open system, centered on the reception of foreigners. Now the so-called administrative detention included in the C.P.R. and the category of “safe country of origin”. But all this matter has become sub judice, and like a review filter, of the approach set up in jurisprudential discourse.
